

Who said that?

Now a teeny bit more to the right.

Plot spot right one mil.

On top of the bridge sits a funny-looking contraption with a big, round head, a long, pointed nose, broad shoulder and short stubby arms. This ungainly device is Perkins' fire control radar director. Fire Control Technicians keep it in 'shape. Inside the director, radar scopes, optical equipment and related machinery work together to keep the ship's main battery on target.

